

A

There is a proposal to build a big theme park near to your house. You write to the council to express your anger about this as it will be an eyesore which will reduce the value of your house.

BEYOND

a

You are building a big theme park for your company. You have applied for planning permission and with it you send a letter explaining how the theme park will be good for the local community.

BEYOND

B

You write a letter to the local newspaper supporting a plan to ban dog walkers from your local reservoir. The ban has been suggested because some dog walkers are not picking up their dog's poop.

BEYOND

b

You write a letter to the local paper arguing against plans to ban dog walkers from the local reservoir. The ban has been suggested because some dog walkers are not picking up their dog's poop. You do not think this is fair.

BEYOND

C

You write to complain about motorised mobility scooters in your town. You have a dog and he has been nearly run over by old people on scooters on several occasions because they don't see him.

BEYOND

c

You write to complain about dog owners using extendable leads in town when you are using your motorised mobility scooter. The leads act like trip wires and have become tangled in the wheels of your scooter many times.

BEYOND

D

You write an email to your friend persuading them to come home from New Zealand. You really miss them and want them to come home.

BEYOND

d

You write an email to your friend to persuade him/her that you leaving to live in New Zealand is a good idea and to make him/her understand your reasons.

BEYOND

E

You are a headteacher and you decide that a longer school day is a good idea, however, you will abolish homework. Present this to your students as a good idea.

BEYOND

e

Your headteacher has decided to make the school day longer but abolish homework. Write her/him an email to say why this is not a good idea.

BEYOND

F

Your parent/carer wants to throw away your old teddy. You've had the teddy since you were a baby, however it is falling to pieces, it has no eyes and actually looks a bit scary. Persuade your parent/carer to let you keep it.

BEYOND

f

You are a parent/carer and you want to throw your child's old teddy away. It has no eyes and is misshapen - it looks like a monster. Your child is 15. Persuade your child to let you throw it away.

BEYOND

G

Your friend has won £3 million on the lottery and wants to tell their family about it. Try to persuade them to keep it a secret.

BEYOND

g

You have won £3 million on the lottery. Your friend wants you to keep it secret, but you think you should tell your family about it. Persuade your friend that you are right.

BEYOND

H

You offer to take your friend on holiday to the Australian outback and you will pay, but your friend is petrified of spiders and snakes. Persuade them it is still a good idea to go.

BEYOND

h

Your friend has offered to pay for you go on holiday with them to the Australian outback. You are petrified of snakes and spiders and don't want to go. Persuade your friend that this is not a good idea.

BEYOND

I

You want to learn to ride a motorbike.
Persuade your parents/carers that it is a good idea.

BEYOND

i

You are a parent/carer and your child wants to learn to ride a motorbike.
Persuade them that this is a bad idea.

BEYOND

J

You are a parent/carer and your child is not doing well at school so you have decided to send them to a private boarding school. Persuade them that this is for the best.

BEYOND

j

Your parent/carer is disappointed that you are not doing well at school and has decided to send you to a private boarding school. Persuade them not to.

BEYOND

K

Your best friend is set on going to university even though the course they want to do will mean they have £27 000 of debt in tuition fees alone, not to mention money borrowed to live on. You want your friend to think again. Write a persuasive email to give your reasons.

BEYOND

k

You have your heart set on going to university even though the course you want to do will result in you having £27 000 of debt in tuition fees, not to mention the money you would borrow to live on. Your friend doesn't think you should do it. Write an email to them to persuade them it is worth it.

BEYOND

L

Your friend has had a recent accident which has resulted in them having a scar on their face. Consequently, they don't want to go to the school prom. Persuade them to go.

BEYOND

l

You have recently had an accident which has resulted in a scar on your face. You are self-conscious about it and have decided you don't want to go to the school prom. Your friend is trying to get you to go. Persuade them that it's better if you don't.

BEYOND

M

Your friend wants to go and work in Sudan in a warzone, doing voluntary aid work. Persuade them that this isn't a good idea.

BEYOND

m

You want to go to Sudan and work in a war zone doing voluntary aid work. Your best friend thinks you shouldn't go. Say why it is a good idea.

BEYOND

N

Your friend takes you on a surprise overnight trip for your birthday. When you get there you realise it is a 'ghost hunt' and you have to spend the night in a haunted house. You feel terrified. Persuade them to take you home.

BEYOND

n

You have booked a surprise overnight trip to do a 'ghost hunt' for your friend's birthday, however, your friend feels terrified at the prospect. Persuade them to stay.

BEYOND

O

Your friend has developed an interest in hunting and is planning on joining a deer hunt later in the year. You are anti-hunting. Persuade your friend to leave the deer alone.

BEYOND

o

You have developed an interest in hunting and are planning on joining a deer hunt later in the year. Your friend is anti-hunting. Persuade them that hunting is necessary and not cruel.

BEYOND

P

You are going out for the day with your friend. She wants to bring her five-year-old sister who has been seriously ill recently and has not had much fun. Persuade your friend not to bring her.

BEYOND

p

You are going out for the day with your friend. You want to bring your five-year-old sister who has been seriously ill recently and not had much fun. Your friend isn't keen on this idea. Persuade her that it will still be a fun day.

BEYOND