

Writing to ask for information

Salon - Ar frys / In a hurry

- Stylist Rwyf ti'n edrych yn smart heddiw.
- Customer Diolch yn fawr. Dw i'n mynd am gyfweliad swydd am ddau o'r gloch felly dw i ar frys.
- Stylist Dim problem, eistedda.
- iawn. Beth hoffet ti wneud heddiw?
- Customer Trim bach plîs. Dw i ddim eisiau bod yn hwyr, felly does dim angen golchi'r gwallt.
- Stylist iawn. Rhys. Dŵr.
- Beth ydy dy waith di?
- Customer Athrawes.
- Stylist A ble rwyf ti'n byw?
- Customer Dw i'n byw yn Abertawe.
- Stylist W! Braf iawn.
- Customer Esgusoda fi. Ga i dywel a dw i wir ar frys.
- Stylist Rhys, tywel!
- Customer Diolch.
- Stylist Felly swydd newydd, dyna gyffrous.
- Customer Hm. Hm.
- Stylist O. Rhys, siswrn.
- Felly wyt ti'n mwynhau dysgu?
- Customer Ydw. Ydw.
- Stylist Oes anifeiliaid anwes gyda ti? Mae dwy gath gyda fi. Tiddles a Squiggles.
- Wyt ti'n hoffi pysgod?

Beth wyt ti'n feddwl o'r lliw coch?

Translation

|          |                                                                                                                                    |
|----------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Stylist  | You look smart today.                                                                                                              |
| Customer | Thank you very much. I'm going for a job interview at two o'clock so I'm in a hurry.                                               |
| Stylist  | No problem, sit.OK. What would you like to do today?                                                                       |
| Customer | A little trim please. I don't want to be late, so there's no need to wash the hair.                                                |
| Stylist  | OK. Rhys. Water.What is your job?                                                                                          |
| Customer | I'm a teacher.                                                                                                                     |
| Stylist  | And where do you live?                                                                                                             |
| Customer | I live in Swansea.                                                                                                                 |
| Stylist  | Oohh! Very nice.                                                                                                                   |
| Customer | Excuse me. Can I have a towel and I really am in a hurry.                                                                          |
| Stylist  | Rhys, a towel!                                                                                                                     |
| Customer | Thank you.                                                                                                                         |
| Stylist  | So, a new job, how exciting!                                                                                                       |
| Customer | Hm. Hm.                                                                                                                            |
| Stylist  | Oh. Rhys. Scissors.So do you enjoy teaching?                                                                               |
| Customer | Yes. Yes.                                                                                                                          |
| Stylist  | Do you have any pets? I have two cats. Tiddles and Squiggles.Do you like fish?What do you think of the colour red? |